It is 10.30 am on a cool day at the Limestone Building at Newstead in Brisbane – the new headquarters for golf course management company Troon Golf (Australia). I'm greeted warmly by Vanessa Andrew who offers me coffee and ushers me into the boardroom. I'm here to interview the company's senior vice president and managing director Ryan Walls about Troon Golf's growth and its expansion into Asia. But before Walls emerges from his office, I'm reacquainted with Nick Stewart, director of sales and marketing. Stewart, who has been with Troon Golf for eight years, tells me Troon Golf's prospects for growth are strong – both in the Australia Pacific region and Asia. He says over the past 12 months the company has grown its portfolio and set a number of initiatives in place. READ MORE
